MEMORANDUM

If all the words used by editors, the radio and ordinary citizens in trying to "explain" the new atomic bomb were piled up, they would more than fill the crater caused by the bomb.

ATOMIC BOMB DISCOVERY

Announcement of the release of an atomic bomb over Japan is the greatest scientific development of our times. The layman knows little of atoms, but he gathers that when man experiments with basic units of matter he is tampering with something that can change the entire pattern of life on this globe . . . could even destroy life on this life.

Atomic bombing can wipe out entire nations. Here at last is the proof that there must be no more wars. Future perfection of this weapon would mean that any nation could be wiped out in a few moments. It has not yet been so perfected, but science will learn to use this amazing discovery.

Used for peace and progress, the release of atomic energy may well usher in the greatest century in all the files of time.

We trust that steps have already been taken to place this entire discovery under government ownership for the benefit of all the people. It would be a tragedy were any part of it reserved for private or corporate ownership or exploitation.

We note that credit for backing the experiments and study which led to this discovery is given to the late Franklin D. Roosevelt.

BETTER HOMES

From Staunton Evening Leader

Looking over an attractive booklet, "Modern Home and Gardening," one of the many appearing in drugstores, bookshops, and news stands, a reader observes that design for small homes is improving.

The home-builder with money enough to employ a good architect and build a substantial, roomy house, always could get a good design, but the family of small means had to take anything the contractor threw together. The contractor may have been honest and a good workman, but he knew little of principals of design, and less about the functional aspects of a house and habitual movements of those in it. If the kitchen or laundry had space for labor-saving appliances, that was enough. How they were placed meant nothing. Too often they didn't mean anything to the architect, either, who should have known better. Fireplaces with doors so important in rooms next to them are common. Opening the front door disturbed everyone.

With a good plan one member of a family moving from kitchen to dining room or front door need not disturb another reading, sewing or studying by the fire. Father or children coming in from garage or outdoors can wash hands and hang hats without tracking up the kitchen. Small houses, moreover, but only can be but are beginning to be beautiful in line and proportion.

Architecture is one of the most important of the arts and sciences. Comfort, beauty, efficiency, smooth and non-nervous living are tied up in it. The family planning its new home can have all these if it will.

GERMAN WAR DEAD

From Winchester Star

Lacking confidence in the authenticity of German assertions that Nazi war dead did not exceed 4,000,000, the Allies, for purposes of their own, will make a new count.

German figures on total casualties in the armed forces are placed at 14,000,000, of which fewer than one-fourth are reported to have lost their lives. In view of the length of the war, and the terrific punishment suffered in Russia and on the Western Front, the Allies suspect that the figures have been pared.

German figures contain further discrepancies in number of civilian dead. Berlin has pretended only 10,000 lost their lives in the tremendous bombing of Germany. Great Britain admits 60,000 Englishmen were killed on home soil by enemy action. The two figures can not be reconciled, and the Allies are determined to learn the truth.

Even multiplied five times, which Allied officials say would be nearer the truth, it would seem blanket bombing of a nation does not take as disastrous a toll of civilians as might be supposed. What it is recalled great cities were destroyed, metropolitan areas containing millions of inhabitant wiped out, it hardly seems possible that only half a million died.

There must be some reason for German attempts to conceal the extent of Nazi losses. It may be reluctance to admit to the world how utter was German defeat. But the truth will become known. The Allies are determined on that score.

INCOME, WEALTH AND TAXES

From New York Times

Eighteen months ago William R. Vanderbilt died and left an estate of $35,000,000. It is now reported that Federal taxes took $25,000,000 and New York States taxes another $5,000,000, thus leaving $5,000,000 for the heir. The news item points up the extent to which our tax laws have gone in redistributing wealth. The trend has been sharply accelerated during the war. Federal taxes on individual incomes now take over 50 per cent when taxable income is in excess of $14,000, 75 per cent when it is in excess of $44,000, and 92 per cent when the $100,000 mark is reached. In fact, less than $30,000 (Seiter: State taxes) is retained out of the first $100,000 of earnings, and only $7,500 out of the second $100,000. With such steep tax rates, incomes have been leveled in a manner never previously seen in our history.

In the face of such taxes it is virtually impossible to accumulate large fortunes. Thus Trusts and Estates Magazine has recently published estimates which showed that after a modest allowance for living expenses, in order to accumulate $100,000 under today's tax schedules, it would be necessary to earn $85,000 a year for ten years. To accumulate $250,000 would require annual earnings of $50,000 for a ten-year period, or $150,000 a year for twenty years. To accumulate $1,000,000, annual earnings of $2,130,000 for ten years or $1,073,000 for twenty years would be required. Of course if such earnings were accumulated, large estate taxes on the accumulation would then have to be paid to the Government, upon death. Even after post-war tax reductions are considered, it seems improbable that it will be possible to earn large fortunes. The rate of accumulation could be speeded up by means of increases in capital values because the capital gains tax is lower than the income tax, but this mearely means that a larger share would be taken by estate taxes.

These figures will come as a surprise to many persons because of the continuel emphasis by some groups upon the need to redistribute income and wealth and the tendency in referring to current incomes to emphasize incomes before taxes. The fact is, however, that the distribution of income and wealth has been equalized to an extent that, before the war, would not have been thought possible.

Helping to relieve the acute suffering of thousands of long oppressed victims of Nazi terrorism, vast quantities of vitamins, pills and dehydrated foods have been shipped to Belgium by the Belgian War Relief Society, according to a report to W. Tayloe Murphy from the National War Fund which finances the work of that organization.

Charges Japs, Stung by B-29s, Abuse Captives

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Japanese, stung by Superfortress blows, take it out on their prisoners of war.

Capt. Robert C. Shanks Jr., 25, Grand Prairie, Texas, a B-29 pilot, told recently how he and his crew of 10 were mistreated, underfed, clubbed and humiliated. They spent four and a half months in a Jap prison at Rangoon, Burma, after bailing out of a damaged B-29. "Airmen get the worst treatment of all," the Texan said. "It was awful one day after we apparently hit Japan pretty hard. The airmen really got it in that prison camp then."

Shanks lost 50 pounds in Japanese captivity. His men suffered similarly. All were liberated when the 14th army and the Royal navy took Rangoon. . . .

The war effort urgently needs timber products.

Minute Make-Ups

Normal skins must be kept normal. Even if your skin is beautiful it needs care. The normal skin may do well with soap and water but cream will keep it soft and pretty. Dry skin demands care. Warmed oil, patted on every day, relaxes that "taut" feeling.

Siamese Twin, Saved at Birth, Is Now Graduate

STREATOR, ILL. — Meta Marie Keller, who survived a rare operation which separated her from a siamese twin sister at her birth 17 years ago, has been graduated as salutatorian of a class of 185 seniors in Streator High school.

The girl, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Keller, farmers near Streator, is active in 4-H club work.

At birth, February 1, 1928, Meta Marie was joined to a twin by a 6-inch connection in the abdomen. The only sign of life in the other twin was the circulation of blood, apparently from the live girl. Dr. Paul R. Clark operated at once and Meta Marie soon became a normal baby.

Natives Show Ingenuity In Use of Beer Bottles

NEW YORK.—The one-trip beer bottle is doing double duty overseas. In countries where glassware is scarce, natives convert empty packie bottles into serviceable drinking glasses by cutting off the necks.

In North Africa, for example, nonreturnable beer bottles have become a medium of exchange worth 25 to 50 cents apiece to natives who have gone into the glassware business. That's considerably more than the bottle had cost full of beer at an army post exchange.

The nonreturnable bottle, designed for the army and navy, is a lightweight container that will be available to civilians after the war.

Lifts Restrictions on Making Vacuum Cleaners

WASHINGTON. — The War Production board lifted restrictions on the manufacture of vacuum cleaners. The WPB emphasized, however, that scarcity of material will keep production from reaching the 1940 rate of 1,903,000 "for some time." Manufacturers assured the WPB they would produce cleaners in "approximately their prewar price ranges."

Virtually All Yankee Prisoners Are Released

PARIS, FRANCE. — The provost marshal's office of the European theater announced that virtually all American prisoners of war, including those in Russian occupied areas, have been recovered and that more than two-thirds have departed for the United States.

The announcement said 89,776 recovered American prisoners were either on the way home or awaiting transportation.

Take My Word For It!

THUMBNAIL LESSON IN FRENCH

One of the most important words in French is the simple preposition de. It means "of; from; in; than." In French names, de has the meaning of "from (a place); of the family or clan of." It is similar to the German "von," but, in France, de in a personal name is not necessarily a sign of noble lineage.

Now note carefully — especially you newscasters and commentators —in French de is NEVER "deer" nor "day." To pronounce de correctly, simply give "e" the obscure "uh" sound, as if to say "duh" without pronouncing the "h," thus: duh.

And please, p-l-e-a-s-e, gentlemen of the radio, there is no "gail" in de Gaulle. This name has international, yes, historic, importance. Is it unreasonable to ask broadcasters to pronounce it correctly?

See how easy it is: Gaulle rhymes with "dole, mole, pole." And the general's first name, Charles, is not "Charle's." The "a" is flat, as in "carrot, arrogant." The final "s" is silent. Say:

sharl duh GOLE

Meriden: Please put us right on the name Quebec. Everyone calls it "kwee-BECK," but I understand it is derived from the French "que" and "bec," in which case it would not be "kwee-BECK."—T. L. B.

Answer: The origin of Quebec is somewhat in doubt, but it is thought to be a French corruption of the Algonquin word for "a strait." The customary pronunciation is: kwee-BECK. French-speaking Canadians prefer: kay-BECK.

Ogden: How did the "tommy gun" get its name?—H. T.

Answer: It was coined from the name of the manufacturers—the Thompson Automatic Arms Company.

ISAAC'S TESTIMONY TO GOD

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 26:19-33.

GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed be the Lord God, the God of Israel, who only doeth wondrous things.—Psalm 72:18.

A man of peace in a wartorn world may seem to be a bit out of place, but he assuredly is not if the peace he has and promotes is the peace of God.

Our world has seen anew a demonstration of the awful results of the philosophy that might makes right. Violence and bloodshed have been man's way of asserting his supposed or assumed rights. One could say that we are now ready to recognize that we need a new viewpoint, for patience and meekness are not weaknesses, that kindness and love are Christian virtues worth emulating and cultivating.

That result can come only if men will recognize Christ as the King of their lives and nations will receive His Word as their law. Let us proclaim His truth and the gospel of His grace anew, and win all we can to Him.

Isaac was a man of peace. He was a rather ordinary man, one of the common people, but his life is both interesting and instructive. He had come through varied experiences of victory and defeat before the time of our lesson. Fearing a famine, and apparently not trusting God at the moment, he had gone down from the promised land to a country of the Philistines, there digging the wells which his father Abraham had dug. The result was that he prospered. Ere long, however, envy on the part of his enemies taught Isaac that one may expect

I. Strife in the World (vv. 19-21).

Isaac had prospered, but he was still out of the promised land, and while he was in the land of Philistines he could expect no permanent peace.

We are in the world. We are to be at peace, and would throw all our influence and service into the cause of bringing a righteous peace to the troubled peoples of the world. But let us not be misled by that desire into the support of unscriptural and impossible peace programs. The world is a sinful world, and as long as that is true, there will be strife and war.

Our business in such a world is to preach the gospel of grace, seeking men to Christ, that they may become men of good will. Isaac was such a man, willing to yield even what seemed to be his right, rather than cause contention.

Undoubtedly there are times when one must defend his name and his possessions, but all too often that is only to "stand for their rights" into wrecked homes, churches, and nations, and have gained nothing but an empty victory.

The peace of this world is temporary. Is there then no real abiding peace and joy?

II. Joy in God's Fellowship (vv. 22-25).

When Isaac came up into Canaan the land which God had promised to him, he found real peace and abiding joy in renewed fellowship with God. Even so, the Christian man and woman who will step into the treatment of Germans varies of a spiritually destructive fellowship with the ungodly world and with the sector and the time spent come over wholeheartedly into the spiritual Canaan of full consecration and separate living, will find true peace and satisfying communion with God.

III. Testimony in Right Living (vv. 26-31).

These men were wicked men, even speaking falsehood in their claim of friendship toward Isaac (v. 26). Now that they perceived that God was continually blessing Isaac in spite of their repeated injustice toward him, they decided it would be well to make a covenant of friendship with him. Even those who follow the way of war and aggression cannot deny the effectiveness of true Christian testimony.

Observe also that by his patience and kindness, Isaac ultimately made friends out of his enemies. It is better to turn enemies into friends than to beat them, and have only enemies still." And so this man spirit brought peace not only to himself, but to those about him, because he believed and trusted God. "When a man's ways please the Lord, he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him" (Prov. 16:7).

IV. Blessing in Service (vv. 32, 33).

The thing to do when the ominous cloud of others is about to cause strife is to go and "dig another well." If we will do that, we will find that God has been there ahead of us and prepared a rich flow of fresh water with which we may refresh and encourage ourselves.

Isaac's men said, "We have found water," and he then named the place Beersheba, which means "the well of the oath," referring undoubtedly to God's fulfilled promise to bless him. He had found the way of peace, fellowship and blessing because he had gone God's way.

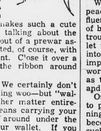
LOCKETS FOR THE LOVELORN

The first thing you do when you find yourself swinging on a star with a boy is to exchange photographs. Then, of course, you wear or carry that photo where everyone can see it. What's the use of being in a drift unless everyone knows about it, we always say.

Love Puffs—Sew two flat powder puffs together, leaving the top open so you can insert his photo. Embroider his name in colored yarn across the front. Pin this puff locket to your lapel. Make one just like it for his.



Jack-in-the-box—We hope his name is Jack, on account of this makes such a cute title when we're talking about the locket you make out of a prevaricatin box, decorated, of course, with nail polish or paint. Close it over a ribbon and tie the ribbon around your neck.

Wallet Woo — We certainly don't recommend pitching woo—but "wallet woo" is another matter entirely. It simply means carrying your O.A.O.'s picture around under the cellophane in your wallet. If you have lots of other boys' pictures, you always carry HIS on top. Shuffle them around with every change of heart.

Sweet Stuff—Paste his photo on the candy part of a lollipop. Tie a ribbon around the stick and wear on your lapel.

How women and girls may get wanted relief from functional periodic pain

Cardui is a liquid medicine which many women say has brought relief from the cramp-like agony and nervous tension of functional periodic distress. Here's how it may help:

1 Taken like a tonic, it should stimulate appetite. Thus help build resistance for the "time" to come.

2 Started 3 days before "your time," it should help relieve pain, nervousness, functional periodic distress.

Try Cardui. If it helps, you'll be glad you did. ☆

More Waiting for Civilians Likely

Output of Consumer Goods To Continue Tight.

NEW YORK.—Civilians may have to wait longer than they had expected for new automobiles, household appliances and other consumer goods, the National Industrial Conference board indicated after a survey.

Automobile output is expected to be light for many months and the tire industry, hampered by raw materials shortages, faces military rubber production schedules set on an increasing scale through 1946, the board said.

Washing machines and electric irons were comparatively bright spots in the civilian supply picture outlined by the board. It estimated that 2,000,000 electric irons would be made this year, and set demand at 5,000,000.

No mechanical refrigerators may be looked for through normal channels until early next year, the survey indicated. Material shortages are expected to keep sewing machines, vacuum cleaners and radios off the market until 1946.

Plumbing and heating equipment production lines are expected to be restored immediately, but board estimates in other industries were: Office equipment, 1 to 3 months; mechanical refrigerators, 6 to 12 months, and automobiles, 8 to 15 months.

The textile and shoe outlook is gloomy, according to the report.

The board said the present backlog of demand for residential building could not be erased immediately because of shortages of materials and finished products, as well as a lack of some types of building craftsmen.
